> How many wives whose husbands are carning, say, between $1,000 and $1,500 a year, still think it beneath their dignity to do more than the most dainty of shopping? The habit of ordering at the door is an ingrained one, and to some minds smacks of superiority; but an examination of the extent to which higher prices have necessarily to be paid in this way would surprise a good many.

This only applies to the difference between the actual cash price paid at the shop and the price charged by the same tradesman who collects orders and delivers and very often has to allow a bill to be run up, to say nothing of the odd ounces frequently charged on the bill, which, had the purwould have been found to be nonex-

This, however, is not the only saving which can be made as between personal shopping and giving orders at the door, says the New York Evening Telegram. A keen shopper, with ready cash available, will soon find a substantial difference between various shops supplying the same commodities within quite a small radius if the trouble is taken to ascertain prices. This means trouble, but looked at sensibly it results in the equivalent of earning money, for money saved is money earned in a distinct sense in housekeeping.

Moreover, when purchasing in person one can always insist upon getting the best article at the price, whereas if the goods are delivered after ordering at the door, if they are found to be not quite up to the mark, they are more than likely to be put up with, either through lack of time to send them back or indisposition to bother further.

BROUGHT SHARPER TO TIME

Procedure of Justice Probably Not Found in Blackstone, But It Was Decidedly Efficacious.

It was the early days of boat travel all kinds. Phone 476, on the Ohio river when even passenger steamers stopped at landings on islands and mainlands for freight. We had made an island landing and a wealthy passenger had left the boat to buy cigars at the island's tiny store. He bought $5 worth, and, presented a $100 bill in payment, whereupon the advertisement. storekeeper offered him $5 in change, asserting that he had received only $10. The customer returned to the boat and related his tale of woe to the captain, who at once went ashore and informed the storekeeper that unless the change was at once forthcoming he would hitch a cable around the store and drag it into the river.

The storekeeper still refused and the captain started for his boat. A shack tottered upon its foundation, the frightened storekeeper appeared, the missing bills fluttering in his hand -New York Evening Post.

ODD WAYS OF KEEPING TIME

Lonely Australians Have Many Methods by Which They Compute the Passing of the Hours.

On the immense sheep ranches in Australia each of the boundary riders has a district to look after, in which he has to keep the wire fences in repair and see that the sheep come to no harm. It is a hard, lonely life, in which the rider rarely sees another human being. Many of the men have years in the back country, used two jam tins and seven pebbles. One tin was marked "This Week" and the other, "Last Week." On Sunday morning he was accustomed to take a pebble out of "Last Week" and drop it into "This Week." This operation he repeated every morning until "This Week" had used up the seven. They were then returned to "Last Week," one each day; and the old fellow knew when another week had passed, Another rider, named Eagan, tried several plans to keep count of the days, but always failed. At last he hit chaser been present at the weighing, Country hams, large, pound 20c of a novel and attractive method. He Country hams, small, pound. .. 21c, made a big damper—the name the water with a seasoning of salt-on Sunday and marked it into seven parts. Each section was a day's allowance, and the slices that remained told him the number of days that must pass before Sunday came again.

For several weeks this method never failed him. Unfortunatley, one Tuesday he fell in with a fellow rider who was very hungry. Eagan stinted himself, in order that the ravenous one might be satisfied with that day's section of the damper. But it was no use. The host saw the knife cut the boundary line and the hungry rider carve into the almanac. He could stand it no longer.

"Stop, now, stop!" he yelled, as he clutched the remains of the damper and glared at his visitor. "There," he continued, "you've eaten Tuesday and you've eaten Wednesday, and now you want to slice the best of the mornin' off Thursday! Not if I can stop it, sonny! I won't be knowing the day of the week!"-Youth's Companion.

Lions in Panama.

Both black and yellow lions are of the panther type, but with longer legs, shorter bodies and broader chests, says a Panama correspondent. They stand about thirty inches high. At bay they fight fiercely and no dog is a match for them because they combine great strength with catlike agility. Lions and wildcats are sometimes taken when cubs and brought up in the homes of the natives. Until the age of puberty they are as tame as housecats, but then they become very vic-
